

Cameron Humphreys' second-half strike have kept Wycombe Wanderers' automatic promotion chances alive following a 1-0 home win against 10-man Lincoln City.

The home side had several promising moments in the opening stages with Adam Reach and Luke Leahy working well on the left-hand side, where they found main man Richard Kone on numerous, but to no avail.

The first 45 saw both keepers in Will Norris and George Wickens have little to nothing to do as either team struggled to get any clear-cut chances away.

For the Chairboys, Josh Scowen and Xavier fired over from range, whilst Reeco Hackett went close for the Imps, but his effort went wide of the mark.

The best chance of the half fell in favour of Mike Dodds' side as a Reach deflected cross was tipped onto the crossbar by Wickens.

The second half looked like it was going to be another frustrating afternoon for the Adams Park faithful, as their push for a place in the automatics seems to be slipping away following a run of inconsistent form.

But on 65 minutes, they managed to break the deadlock thanks to Humphreys' seventh of the season.

Reach's backheel on the touchline found Leahy, who decided to play a long ball into the box.

Lincoln's Sean Roughan missed kicked his clearance and stumbled which allowed the on-loan Ipswich man through on goal.

He then rounded Wickens and slotted home his third in 10 games.

And in the final few seconds, Lincoln captain Paudie O'Conner was shown a straight red card for lashing out at Joe Low.

Wycombe remain third but move onto 74 points, three behind Wrexham who sit second.

Lincoln sit 12th on 50 and are not in danger of relegation or have a realistic chance of promotion.
